Distributed and heterogeneous database integration based on Grid technology is an emerging research topic especially for scientific databases. There is currently an enormous number of databases on the web and the problem is how to interface these existing web databases easily in the Grid. We have developed a system called OGSA-WebDB which brings existing web resources into the Grid without any modifications.